

Washington, D. C. 20505

5 April 1979

Dear Bob,

I only recently learned that you had transferred to a new job. I'm sorry on the one hand because I'll miss the direct support you gave me, but welcome the news that you are contemplating a more permanent relationship with us and that your talents and ability were recognized by others when they offered you your current post.

Your help, especially at that crisis time last year when Bill was away, your response to my many questions, and your informed and efficient performance in your role as Assistant National Intelligence Officer were superior and much appreciated.

Many thanks, and best wishes in your new job.

Yours,

A handwritten signature in cursive script, appearing to read "Stansfield Turner".

STANSFIELD TURNER

